

Printing Firms to Honor Father of Press Freedom

A full schedule of special events begins in the Southland Sunday to observe International Printing Week, Jan. 13-19, headed by the annual Printing Week Banquet on Jan. 18.

This year Printing Week, generally observed to commemorate the anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin, printing's patron saint, will honor another great colonial printer, John Peter Zenger.

The 1957 version of Zenger, portrayed by Angelo Tortarolo, instructor in printing at Los Angeles Trade Technical Junior College, will make appearances on TV, at civic club meetings, and other functions.

Printed Facts
Zenger is the father of freedom of the press in America. He published the "New York Weekly Journal" in 1733 and trict, as well as to accept contributions to carry on the year-round work of the ACS.

"Thousands of people can be saved from death by cancer simply by being informed as to cancer's seven danger signals and the importance of treating it in time," he added.

printed factual material exposing the corruptness of Governor William Cosby.

He was arrested and charged with printing seditious libel. At his trial he was defended by aged but brilliant Andrew Hamilton who first propounded the theory that if published matter was true it could not be libelous. Zenger's acquittal validated that theory upon which the freedom of the press is founded.

To Note Week
Other highlights of Printing Week will include open houses at many local printing companies, more than 100 speakers at civic clubs will discuss career opportunities in the graphic arts, and library, and window displays.

Los Angeles is the fourth largest printing center in the world and has become the focal point for printing on the West Coast.

Home Tools Stolen
Tools valued at $400 were taken by a thief who raided the garage at her home, Lucille Hall of 16711 Falda Ave. informed police Sunday.

Robert Jahn Made Cancer Drive Leader

Appointment of Robert B. Jahn as South Bay Area campaign chairman of the American Cancer Society's 1957 Crusade, April 1 to 30, was announced yesterday by Joseph Close, countywide Crusade chairman.

In accepting his appointment City Councilman Jahn said, "I am happy to have this opportunity to work with the American Cancer Society in helping to carry out its three-point program of research, education and service."

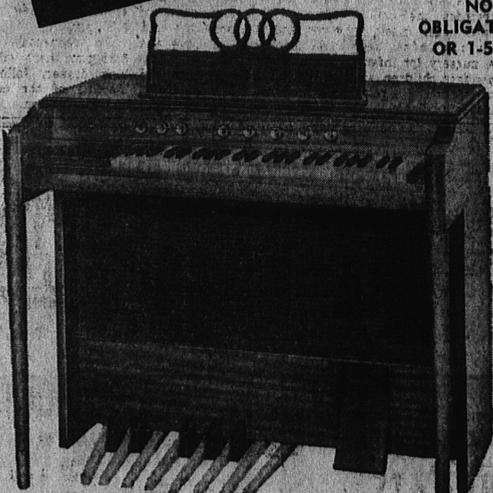

Prime objectives of the April Crusade will be to carry the life-saving facts about cancer into every home in this dis-
